

Data is at the backbone of our decision-making for both our business and our clients. As you can imagine we are swarmed with data - not only of sheer volume, but in a constant state of change.

Recently, Haadi has been working with us to help handle and manage data, at least that's what he was contracted to do.. Instead he has been instrumental in helping us to clean, organise and make sense of the data we work with.

When we first brought him on, his role was to help clean and prep data, not only does he do this well before the given timeframe but he had cleaned, prepped and built his own insights and sent across a presentation with his findings - something that not only hit me by surprise but he managed to spot something we didn't ourselves.

Rare is it to come across someone young, driven and goes above and beyond to genuinely help the business.

We have worked with a lot of talent throughout the years and it's not often someone leaves such a strong impression due to their commitment and work ethic to over-deliver. Haadi has done and continues to do this.

His genuine curiosity and collaborative nature makes operations a lot smoother and easier for the business.

To say I recommend it is an understatement, and if you are curious - task him.

He won't disappoint - that I can guarantee.
